Getting the Deal Through is delighted to publish the fully revised and updated 10th anniversary edition of Private Equity, a volume in our series of annual reports, which provide international analysis in key areas of law and policy for corporate counsel, cross-border legal practitioners and business people.

Following the format adopted throughout the series, the same key questions are answered by leading practitioners in each of the 29 jurisdictions featured. New jurisdictions covered this year include Argentina and Slovenia. The report is divided into two sections: the first deals with fund formation in 19 jurisdictions and the second deals with transactions in 27 jurisdictions.

Every effort has been made to ensure that matters of concern to readers are covered. However, specific legal advice should always be sought from experienced local advisers. Getting the Deal Through publications are updated annually in print. Please ensure you are referring to the latest print edition or to the online version at www.gettingthedealthrough.com.

Getting the Deal Through gratefully acknowledges the efforts of all the contributors to this volume, who were chosen for their recognised expertise. Getting the Deal Through would also like to extend warm and heartfelt thanks to contributing editor Casey Cogut who has recently retired from Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP. Casey has held the position of contributing editor of Private Equity since its inauguration 10 years ago, and Casey and his colleagues at Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP have been instrumental in the success of the publication. The publisher would like to welcome William Curbow, also a partner at Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP, as current and future contributing editor of Private Equity. We are delighted to have William on board, and we look forward to future editions in his very capable editorial hands.

1 Types of private equity transactions

What different types of private equity transactions occur in your jurisdiction? What structures are commonly used in private equity investments and acquisitions?

Leveraged acquisitions, management buyouts, development capital investments, fund organisations, divestitures and recapitalisations are all types of private equity transactions which occur in the Cayman Islands.

The most commonly used vehicle for private equity funds in the Cayman Islands is the exempted limited partnership established under the Cayman Islands Exempted Limited Partnership Law (2013 Revision), which affords limited liability status to investors who are limited partners in the limited partnership provided that they do not take part in the conduct of the business of the limited partnership. The fund's sponsor, or an affiliate, typically acts as the general partner and has unlimited liability for the limited partnership's obligations.

2 Corporate governance rules

What are the implications of corporate governance rules for private equity transactions? Are there any advantages to going private in leveraged buyout or similar transactions? What are the effects of corporate governance rules on companies that, following a private equity transaction, remain or become public companies?

The reporting requirements of overseas fund managers managing private equity funds (for example, reporting requirements of US fund managers who are SEC registered) has implications for Cayman Islands private equity funds, as those fund managers are aligning their management of the funds and corporate governance generally with best practices expected by the regulators.

The effect of corporate governance rules on companies that, following a private equity transaction, remain or become public, will be subject to the corporate governance obligations imposed by the regulator of the relevant exchange.

3 Issues facing public company boards

What are the issues facing boards of directors of public companies considering entering into a going-private or private equity transaction? What procedural safeguards, if any, do public companies use when considering transactions? What is the role of a special committee in such a transaction where senior management, members of the board or significant shareholders are participating or have an interest in the transaction?

In making their decisions at board level, the directors have fiduciary duties to, among other things:

- act in good faith in the best interests of the company;
- act for a proper purpose in accordance with the constitution of the company; and

- avoid circumstances which create a conflict of interests between the interests of the director and the interests of the company.

As a general principle, these duties are owed to the company and not to individual shareholders.

A conflict of interest will arise if the directors' interests do not align with those of the company. In the context of a 'take-private' transaction, directors are under a duty to act in good faith when advising shareholders on the merits of a transaction but are under no obligation to give such advice.

In cases where the controlling shareholder has control of the board or senior management, or members of the board are participating in the transaction, it is the norm for Cayman Islands companies to establish special committees consisting entirely of independent and disinterested directors to negotiate the transaction to ensure arm's-length third party negotiations and to avoid conflicts of interests.

4 Disclosure issues

Are there heightened disclosure issues in connection with going-private transactions or other private equity transactions?

There are no specific disclosure obligations on the directors of the target company under Cayman Islands law in a 'take-private' transaction, other than the directors' fiduciary duties and their common law duty to act with due care and skill in exercising their functions for and on behalf of the company.

5 Timing considerations

What are the timing considerations for a going-private or other private equity transaction?

The timing considerations for a 'take-private' transaction are subject to the takeover mechanism used to effect the acquisition of the target company in the Cayman Islands. The mechanism most often used is to have a merger (under the merger regime in Part XVI of the Companies Law (2013 Revision) (the Companies Law) between the target and an acquiring newco (which has been financed for the transaction). Other legal mechanisms used are schemes of arrangement under sections 86–87 of the Companies Law and takeover offers utilising the 'squeeze-out' provisions contained in section 88 of the Companies Law.

In the case of a merger, the timing from commencing the 'take-private' to applying to register the merger (in order for a Certificate of Merger to be issued by the Cayman Islands Registrar of Companies) will depend on the complexity of the transaction and the timing for obtaining tax and regulatory clearances but can be between two to three months which is usually shorter than the time periods for a scheme of arrangement or tender offer.

In the case of a scheme of arrangement, a precise timetable will need to be agreed with the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands. In practice, this process is likely to take up to three months from the date of settling the scheme document and commencing the court-based scheme proceedings, to sanction of the 'take-private' pursuant to the scheme by the Grand Court. However, the overall time period for a scheme of arrangement from beginning to end often takes significantly longer than three months. The merger regime has a number of advantages over the scheme in terms of timing. For example, the lack of court supervision under the merger regime provides the target company with more manoeuvrability in the event of a competing, unsolicited (or hostile) bid being made because there would be no need for the target company to deal with obtaining court approval for its actions or otherwise to keep the court informed of what it is undertaking and how that might bear on the scheme of arrangement at hand. The approval threshold for a merger is lower than the approval threshold for a scheme of arrangement.

While there is no maximum time period in completing a takeover, if the 'squeeze-out' provisions are being utilised and the bidder meets the 90 per cent minimum acceptance condition within four months of the date of the offer being made, the bidder will (unless the minority or dissenting shareholders make an application to the court) be able to compulsorily acquire the outstanding shares held by the minority or dissenting shareholders one month from the bidder's notice to acquire such shares.

6 Dissenting shareholders' rights

What rights do shareholders have to dissent or object to a going-private transaction? How may dissenting shareholders challenge a going-private transaction? How do acquirers address the risks associated with shareholder dissent?

In respect of the mechanism most often used for a 'take-private' transaction, the merger and consolidation under Part XVI of the Companies Law, in order to implement such a merger, a plan of merger, approved by the directors, must be put to the shareholders of each constituent company for approval. The threshold for such approval is a special resolution of the shareholders, all voting as one class, unless a higher threshold is required under the company's memorandum and articles of association. A special resolution is at least two-thirds majority (or such higher number as may be specified in the constituent company's articles of association). However, under the Company Law, a member of a constituent company shall be entitled to payment of the fair value of his shares upon dissenting from a merger. Such fair value shall be agreed between the company and each dissenting shareholder or, in the absence of such agreement, by the court. This ensures that a dissenting shareholder cannot delay the 'take-private' transaction and also enables the directors to take some comfort when considering their fiduciary obligations to ensure the interests of all shareholders are protected.

If a scheme of arrangement is used, under sections 86–87 of the Companies Law, a higher threshold of approval is required being majority in number of affected (ie, independent) shareholders on a show of hands, whose collective shareholding must be at least 75 per cent of the shares being voted at the meeting. As schemes of arrangement require the consent of a majority in number (as opposed to a vote based on shareholdings in a merger) this can lead to some difficulty where listed companies who might small numbers of registered shareholders (for example where shares are predominantly held by nominee shareholders) mean a registered shareholder with a comparatively low shareholding may potentially block the scheme of arrangement. The same issue would not arise with the merger route described above. However, if a scheme of arrangement is approved, any dissenting shareholders are bound by decision of the majority.

7 Purchase agreements

What purchase agreement provisions are specific to private equity transactions?

Private equity buyers will, in addition to the standard terms contained in these types of purchase agreements, seek comprehensive representations and warranties, indemnities, seller or management earn-out provisions, seller roll-over requirements or restrictive covenants. On the investment aspects of the transaction, the private equity buyer will seek to have provisions dealing with a number of investor consent matters including borrowing, capital expenditure, financing, control on management remuneration, exit strategy provisions, employee incentivisation plans or schemes.

In contrast, on exit, private equity sellers typically only provide limited warranty protection, with short claim periods and no guarantees or post-completion covenants.

8 Participation of target company management

How can management of the target company participate in a going-private transaction? What are the principal executive compensation issues? Are there timing considerations of when a private equity sponsor should discuss management participation following the completion of a going-private transaction?

In performing his fiduciary duties as a director, a director is under an obligation not to put himself in a position where there is an actual or potential conflict between his duty to the company and his personal interests. Notwithstanding this obligation, a director may participate and become part of a compensation-based structure in a private equity transaction provided that:

- any conflict of interest is disclosed and such disclosure and participation by the director is permitted or can be waived under the company's articles of association;
- there has been no breach of fiduciary duties by the participating director; and
- there are no circumstances giving rise to the participating director having used the company's assets, opportunities or information for his own personal profit.

There are no statutory or regulatory restrictions or disclosure requirements in relation to principal executive compensation under Cayman law.

9 Tax issues

What are the basic tax issues involved in private equity transactions? Give details regarding the tax status of a target, deductibility of interest based on the form of financing and tax issues related to executive compensation. Can share acquisitions be classified as asset acquisitions for tax purposes?

Under current Cayman Islands law, there are no Cayman Islands taxes on income or gains of the private equity firm or the portfolio company and on gains on dispositions of shares or partnership interests, and distributions made by the private equity buyer or portfolio company will not be subject to withholding tax in the Cayman Islands.

10 Debt financing structures

What types of debt are used to finance going-private or private equity transactions? What issues are raised by existing indebtedness at a potential target of a private equity transaction? Are there any financial assistance, margin loan or other restrictions in your jurisdiction on the use of debt financing or granting of security interests?

There are currently no regulatory restrictions in the Cayman Islands on the use of debt financing for private equity transactions. Secured senior debt, high yield or mezzanine debt, secondary debt, loan notes and payment-in-kind notes are all types of finance mechanisms used in the Cayman Islands to finance 'take-private' or other private equity transactions. There are no financial assistance restrictions in the Cayman Islands.

11 Debt and equity financing provisions

What provisions relating to debt and equity financing are typically found in a going-private transaction? What other documents set out the expected financing?

The provisions relating to debt and equity financing will typically be the commonplace terms that are normally negotiated and settled between the parties to the private equity transaction. There are no special Cayman Islands law considerations that are required to be factored into these provisions.

12 Fraudulent conveyance and other bankruptcy issues

Do private equity transactions involving leverage raise 'fraudulent conveyance' or other bankruptcy issues? How are these issues typically handled in a going-private transaction?

To the extent that a private equity transaction involving leverage impacts on the solvency of the target and its subsidiaries (all or some of which are typically required to provide security for the financing obligations of the acquirer), there will be 'bankruptcy' related issues, such as:

- Statutory provision for voidable preferences – which makes invalid every conveyance or transfer of property, or charge thereon, or payment obligation, etc, made, incurred, taken or suffered by the company in favour of a creditor with a view to giving such creditor a preference over other creditors at any time when the company is unable to pay its debts if the conveyance or transfer of property, or charge thereon, or payment obligation, etc, was made, incurred, taken or suffered by the company within six months preceding the commencement of its liquidation;
- Statutory provision for avoidance of dispositions at an undervalue – every disposition of property made at an undervalue by or on behalf of the company with an intent to defraud its creditors is voidable at the instance of the company's liquidator; and
- Fraudulent dispositions – under the Fraudulent Dispositions Law (1996) every disposition of property made with an intent to defraud and at an undervalue shall be voidable at the instance of a creditor thereby prejudiced if the action is brought within six years of the disposition happening.

These issues are typically handled by structuring the transaction in such a way so as to avoid fraudulent conveyance or other 'bankruptcy' issues from arising.

13 Shareholders' agreements and shareholder rights

What are the key provisions in shareholders' agreements entered into in connection with minority investments or investments made by two or more private equity firms? Are there any statutory or other legal protections for minority shareholders?

The key provisions that drive the structure of shareholder agreements in private equity transactions are focused on retaining control over key operational decisions during the term of the investment, regulation of share transfers, liquidity and exit procedures. Protections afforded to minority investors include: veto rights over certain operational decisions (ie, restricted matters which require the consent of all the shareholders), pre-emption rights on transfer, tag-along rights, board appointment rights and rights to receive information. As a breach of these protections under the shareholders' agreement would only entitle the aggrieved shareholder to claim damages for breach of contract and not reverse the breach, it is important that these protections are also included in the company's articles of association.

Under the Companies Law, special resolutions (which require the approval of at least two-thirds of the shareholders unless the articles of association of the company stipulate a higher threshold) are required for specified actions including: the reduction of the share capital of the company, any amendments to the memorandum and articles of association of the company, any application to wind-up the company; and with respect to the approval of a merger involving the company.

14 Acquisitions of controlling stakes

Are there any requirements that may impact the ability of a private equity firm to acquire control of a public or private company?

There is no mandatory takeover offer or minimum capitalisation requirements under Cayman Islands law. However, in order to acquire a controlling stake by way of a takeover utilising the statutory 'squeeze-out' provisions or by way of a scheme of arrangement, the acquirer will need to meet the statutory thresholds set in order to trigger the compulsory acquisition of the remaining shares (which is currently 90 per cent to activate the statutory squeeze-out mechanism and 75 per cent under a scheme of arrangement).

15 Exit strategies

What are the key limitations on the ability of a private equity firm to sell its stake in a portfolio company or conduct an IPO of a portfolio company? In connection with a sale of a portfolio company, how do private equity firms typically address any post-closing recourse for the benefit of a buyer? Does the answer change if a private equity firm sells a portfolio company to another private equity firm?

Provided that appropriate institutional drag-along rights have been included in the shareholders' agreement or articles of association of the company, a private equity firm should be able to sell its shareholding in a portfolio company to a third party without restriction. Private equity firms will normally seek a 'clean exit' on the sale of a portfolio company rather than at the expiry of claim periods or on the satisfaction of escrow conditions and this would typically be factored into the buyer's offer.

16 Portfolio company IPOs

What governance rights and other rights and restrictions typically included in a shareholders' agreement are permitted to survive an IPO? Are registration rights required for post-IPO sales of stock? What types of lock-up restrictions typically apply in connection with an IPO?

Once listed, the operations of the portfolio company will be governed by the listing rules and regulations of the exchange and jurisdiction in which the portfolio company is listed. Governance rights and other rights and restrictions typically included in a shareholders' agreement such as board appointment rights, veto rights over restricted matters and special information rights are generally not permitted post-IPO.

There are no restrictions on registration rights for post-IPO sales of shares in the Cayman Islands. Lock-up restrictions for private equity firms vary depending on the circumstances and contractual obligations of the parties, but IPO underwriters typically require in the underwriting agreement or lock-up agreement that private equity firms should not sell any shares in the portfolio company for up to 180 days following the IPO.

17 Target companies and industries

What types of companies or industries have typically been the targets of going-private transactions? Has there been any change in focus in recent years? Do industry-specific regulatory schemes limit the potential targets of private equity firms?

As the Cayman Islands is a popular jurisdiction for a holding company structure, there is a very wide range of companies and industries which have been the target of 'take-private' transactions in recent years. There are no industry-specific regulatory schemes or anti-trust laws in the Cayman Islands that limit the potential targets of private equity firms.

18 Cross-border transactions

What are the issues unique to structuring and financing a cross-border going-private or private equity transaction?

There are no foreign investment restrictions, minimum capitalisation requirements or financial assistance restrictions in the Cayman Islands which would lead to specific structuring issues in a cross-border 'take-private' or private equity transaction. The tax-neutral status of the Cayman Islands (see question 9) also means that there are no adverse tax consequences from a Cayman Islands perspective.

19 Club and group deals

What are the special considerations when more than one private equity firm (or one or more private equity firms and a strategic partner) is participating in a club or group deal?

There are no specific Cayman Islands legal considerations which would apply to a private equity transaction involving syndicated parties other than the typical general considerations which would include: the valuation of the investment price, pre-emption rights, investor consent requirements, the make-up of investor majority, timing, terms of disposal pre-exit, restrictive covenants and exit provisions.

Update and trends

2013 has seen a strong return to fund formation activity in the Cayman Islands, characterised by smaller funds with a more narrow focus and on specific sectors. We expect this trend to continue in 2014, with the emerging markets featuring as a key area of interest as investors regain confidence in global market stability, amid the perception that returns in developed markets are becoming 'maxed out'.

20 Issues related to certainty of closing

What are the key issues that arise between a seller and a private equity buyer related to certainty of closing? How are these issues typically resolved?

The key issue relating to certainty of closing arises from the delay between exchange of contracts and closing (with closing happening upon the satisfaction or waiver of a number of conditions precedent in the transaction documents). The principal concern for the seller will be to ensure that the conditions precedent (applicable to the seller) are clear, specific and achievable within the time-frame set for closing. The principal concern for the private equity buyer will be to ensure the synchronisation of the conditions precedent (applicable to the buyer) in the finance, equity investment and acquisition documents. For example, the private equity buyer will want to ensure that it is not legally obliged to buy the target until the conditions precedent relating to debt finance and equity finance have been satisfied or waived. These issues are typically resolved through negotiation. There are no Cayman Islands-specific considerations that are required to be factored into such negotiations.
